

World Water Day and Water Justice Forum – March 22-24
Iliff School of Theology, 2323 E. Iliff Avenue, Denver

Water is life. Protecting water resources in Colorado and worldwide is a must. So is access to clean water and facing the challenges of drought, flooding, pollution, and rising sea levels. Join with others to hear outstanding state, national, and international speakers and engage in facilitated group discussion from environmental, food, civic, and religious perspectives.

Iliff's Water Forum coincides with the celebration of World Water Day (March 22) and a three-day international conference on Water Justice (March 22-24), sponsored by the Trinity Institute in New York City and webcast worldwide. Trinity Institute is an affiliate of Trinity Wall Street Church, an Episcopal parish in New York City.

The Water Forum starts with lunch on Wednesday, March 22. DU Law Professor Ved Nanda will open the Forum with reflections on "World Water Day, Water Justice, and UN Associations." On Thursday and Friday (8:15am – 3:30pm), participants will view presentations by speakers at the Trinity Institute's Water Justice Conference in New York City via live-streaming and webcast delay, followed by locally-facilitated group discussion. Former California Senator, Barbara Boxer, is the keynote speaker.

Daily fee: $25, including light lunch and reception; three-day fee, $60. Students: $8 per day. To register, go to https://actionnetwork.org/ticketed_events/water-justice-forum

For additional background information and a detailed Forum agenda, see <http://www.iliff.edu/the-latest/world-water-justice-forum> or contact Iliff Water Forum Coordinator David Carlson at dcarlson@iliff.edu.

World Water Day and Water Justice Forum – March 22-24
Iliff School of Theology, 2323 E. Iliff Avenue, Denver

Water is life. Protecting water resources in Colorado and worldwide is a must. So is access to clean water and facing the challenges of drought, flooding, pollution, and rising sea levels. Join with others to hear outstanding state, national, and international speakers and engage in facilitated group discussion from environmental, food, civic, and religious perspectives.

Iliff's Water Forum coincides with the celebration of World Water Day (March 22) and a three-day international conference on Water Justice (March 22-24), sponsored by the Trinity Institute in New York City and webcast worldwide. Trinity Institute is an affiliate of Trinity Wall Street Church, an Episcopal parish in New York City.

The Water Forum starts with lunch on Wednesday, March 22. DU Law Professor Ved Nanda will open the Forum with reflections on "World Water Day, Water Justice, and UN Associations." On Thursday and Friday (8:15am – 3:30pm), participants will view presentations by speakers at the Trinity Institute's Water Justice Conference in New York City via live-streaming and webcast delay, followed by locally-facilitated group discussion. Former California Senator, Barbara Boxer, is the keynote speaker.

Daily fee: $25, including light lunch and reception; three-day fee, $60. Students: $8 per day. To register, go to https://actionnetwork.org/ticketed_events/water-justice-forum

For additional background information and a detailed Forum agenda, see <http://www.iliff.edu/the-latest/world-water-justice-forum> or contact Iliff Water Forum Coordinator David Carlson at dcarlson@iliff.edu.